Shades of Glen “Titus” Campbell

Kingston, Jamaica. March 19, 2021: - The Simón Bolívar Cultural Centre (SBCC) is premiering a special edition of ‘Carib-Lat Got Talent’ with a feature interview of Glen “Titus” Campbell, live on the it’s Facebook page Simón Bolívar Cultural Centre Kingston, Jamaica at 10 am on Tuesday, March 23, 2021. Campbell is a well-known actor and comedian who has graced the Jamaican theatre and television stage since he was a teenager attending Jamaica College. Carib-Lat Got Talent seeks to highlight talents such as Campbell’s from the Caribbean and Latin America in various art forms such as music, language, dance and more.

The interview will highlight the full profile of Campbell’s life beginning with the story of his birth, his upbringing as a child and ultimately the life he has led professionally as a Jamaican actor. Zoning in on the influences that impacted his professional life and his love for acting and ultimately contributing to the growth of the industry are some of the areas to be discussed. The aim of this feature is not only to highlight the great achievements of Glen Campbell but to also detail any challenges he has faced with his profession with the hope that his story will bring inspiration to aspiring actors.

Among his notable recognitions is the Order of Distinction received from the Government of Jamaica in 2019. Additionally, he is the only actor to have received a nomination for the Actor Boy award each year since the beginning of his career, he won the award in 1999 for his roles in the play ‘Breadfruit Kingdom’.
